Historical Developments of LGBT Rights Around the World

Slowly but surely, this world is becoming a better place for the LGBT community

Thai LGBT and ladyboy pride march.

The leaders of the LGBT community have been campaigning all over the world for equal rights for its members, especially in countries in the Middle East. Not much progress has been achieved in that part of the world though as olden beliefs get in the way of change.

There are 5 countries that recently made progress in dealing positively with their LGBT citizens from 2017 to 2018.

India

On September 6, 2018, in a historic moment for the LGBT community in India, the country's Supreme Court ruled out in favor of the LGBT community. The Chief Justice of India, Dipak Misra, stated that it is unconstitutional to consider LGBT sexual relationships as a criminal offense.

Previously, the laws of India mete out punishments for “carnal intercourse against the order of nature with any man, woman or animal”. These included anal and oral sex; and gay sexual relationships.

In this unprecedented ruling, the court came to a consensus that the act of adults engaging in consensual gay sex in private is no longer a crime. According to the court, Section 377 violates the right to privacy and constitutional rights, and it's also discriminative. Now, as long as the sex act is done in private by two consenting adults, it's considered lawful.

Interestingly, in ancient India, transgenderism was very much accepted by the society and appears prominently in several ancient literature. It was only under the British colonial rule that this law was made. While the Brits left in 1947, the law remained. In a sense, you could say that this was the true independence of the LGBT community in India.

But, India has still a long way to go with regards to implementing this rule and granting equal rights of LGBT individuals. The police and authorities concerned, especially in rural areas, are yet to undergo training and orientation. The rural areas may not even have heard of the court's ruling yet. Likewise, gay marriages are still to be specifically approved of – legally.

India has taken that perilous step forward with regards to its treatment of LGBT persons. Gradually, the country would move forward to granting equal rights to LGBT members in all aspects of society. More and more countries are accepting LGBT individuals in their communities, and people who have wanted sex changes are no longer scorned at.

Thailand

In Thailand, sex change is popular, acceptable, and is big business. The LGBT community has taken active participation in the country's economy. One significant member of the gay community in the country are the Kathoey or Ladyboys. The Ladyboys are individuals, who had retained their male organ and gonads but have transformed themselves into appearing as feminine as possible.

Bangkok, Thailand is also second to Tel Aviv, as the friendliest city for gays. Nonetheless, gay marriage is still frowned upon by the locals. This 2018, the bill of civil partnership between gay persons is being discussed in parliament. Its approval would further grant additional rights to LGBT persons.

Reportedly, a bill about the Same Sex Life Partnership was introduced to Thailand's Cabinet in September 2018.

Australia

In Australia, parliament has passed a bill allowing gay marriages on December 7, 2017. Beforehand, Australians have approved of same-sex marriages with 62% in favor of gay marriages. The application process had started December 9, 2018 and by January 2019, gay marriages had already been practiced.

Marriage equality is finally being reinforced in Australia, and the Prime Minister said that it's fair, and to get on with it. The government must have felt the sentiments of its citizenry.

Most probably in the future, Australia will protect the rights of couples to adopt a child through a medical process or through legal adoption. This is good news that gay couples can look forward to.

Malta

Same-sex marriage was legalized in Malta in June 2017. Many of the people in Malta are Catholics but the parliament has approved of this law. This means that people have now a broader perspective of gay relationships. It's considered as one of the gay-friendly countries.

In addition, gay couples have the right to adopt children since year 2014. However, surrogacy for gay male partners is totally banned.

Germany

The parliament of Germany had also made gay marriages legal on June 30, 2017. The issue was decided based on a winning vote of 393 against 226 votes in the country's parliament. Reportedly, the right of gay couples to adopt children is not legally supported but it's not banned as well. The couple would have to decide for themselves and act accordingly.

Yearly the number of German citizens supporting LGBT relationships is increasing. In a 2017 poll, it was discovered that 83% of Germans approved of same-sex marriages. This is a significant number that would soon be noticed by lawmakers. This may pave the way for more legal rights granted to the LGBT community.

These legal rights could include the right to adopt children, and the right to raise them as a normal family. Nowadays, normal families don't necessarily have a mother, a father and children. Society's perception of the family has changed into a broader and tolerant description: it could be two fathers and children, or two mothers and children. What's most important is that love, happiness, peace and a sense of belonging can be found in the family.

There would be lesser teen problems as children would prefer to go home and be with their families than do drugs and alcohol – or worst – think of suicide.

A new hope!

These developments in these major countries indicate the ever-changing perception of the legality of gay marriages and the rights of LGBT communities. This increasing social awareness of society to the existence of LGBTs will be a key factor for young people who are gay to accept themselves. This would reduce the number of suicides, bullying and discrimination based on one's sexual orientation.

More countries would surely follow suit as it would be tough to be an outsider in the circle of European countries with regards to LGBT communities.

If you're living in a country that turns you into a criminal because you're being honest of what you truly are; perhaps, it's time to find a better place where you can be legally accepted. This should be a place where your rights as a person are not trampled on, and where you can find your ideal partner in life and be able to marry him.

Everyone deserves to be happy!

OVER-EASY BREAKFAST

Jim Mickel: Reporter-At-Large

Saturday, June 8th, 11 Prime Timers did Over-Easy at Racine's Restaurant on the hill.

We did some car pooling thanks to Rick Knoll from out west.

Breakfast seemed to go very well with everyone enjoying their breakfast. The 'noise factor' was not quite as bad as it has been in the past so conversations were down to a low roar.

It was pretty much our usual Over-Easy Breakfast group, small but yet fun filled with conversation.

Thank you, Darrel, and we look forward to our next outing in July.

HAND, KNEE, FOOT CARDS

Jim Mickel: Reporter-At-Large

10 Prime Timers made it to Ken Krout's home on Monday, June 10th for the monthly Card Club.

Two tables were set up, six played the usual card game of partners and the other table played no partners. That didn't turn out so well, really boring, especially when you could draw a card you needed. Didn't hear much from that table.

As usual there was plenty of food, pizza, fried chicken, finger sandwiches and an apple strudel and pie. Sure enough, there were cookies.

Again, Ken was being a most congenial host.

Next month will be at Joe Rotello's home on Monday, July 8th. See you all then.

MINUTES OF THE JUNE 5TH BOARD MEETING

Toby Davis: Secretary

The meeting was called to order by president Dick Moore. Any visitors were welcomed.

Present were; Dick Moore, Rafael De Jesus, Larry Nelson, Larry Jeffries, Toby Davis, Charles McDonald.

OLD BUSINESS

Larry Nelson, treasurer, handed out the summary of the May Financial Report. (see page 3 for that report) Charles McDonald made a 1st and Toby Davis made a 2nd and was accepted unanimously by the board.

Larry Jeffries Membership Director, reported that 4 members have yet to pay their dues in May with notices sent out. Charles McDonald made a 1st and Larry Nelson made a 2nd and the report was accepted unanimously by the board. Charles McDonald, Director of Special Events mentioned the Annual Colorado Prime Timers Picnic, Saturday, August 24th which was discussed at the luncheon earlier along with information about Night On The Town.

Rafael De Jesus, vice president passed with no comments.

NEW BUSINESS

Charles McDonald, Director of Special Events discussed PrideFest. We were still needing volunteers. He talked about volunteers for our next Beer Bust at Trade on Sunday, July 21st.

Larry Nelson made a motion to explore payment outline for members dues. Discussion on how to ensure reporting to Larry Jeffries. A first was made by Toby Davis and a 2nd was made by Rafael De Jesus and was accepted unanimously by the board.

Larry Nelson put forth a motion to explore an audit group to review the books. The decision that the secretary could review them on a 1/4 basis.

Charles McDonald made a motion to invite non-members to the annual picnic. Larry J. made a 1st and a 2nd was made by Rafael and was accepted unanimously by the board.

Since there was no further business to discuss, the motion was made to adjourn the meeting and away we went.

The next Board Meeting will be Wednesday, July 3rd.

PRIDEFEST JUNE 15 & 16 WOW!!!

Maybe that WOW should be ten times it's size. because that's how PrideFest went this year. Thank you, thank you, to all 34 Prime Timers and 6 non-members who worked so hard at the Coors, Pepsi water and soda booth this year and to Charles McDonald, Director of Special Events for his organizational skills. Those helpers earned the Colorado Prime Timer chapter $482.38 in tips and $1900.00 for our participation from The Center. For their hard work, our president, Dick Moore bought free lunches at the Golden Corral on Wednesday, June 19th.

Hopefully next year there will be more of you to get out there and support your organization and have fun doing it.

Let Me Finish

Thinking About The Fourth of July
How to become independent from intolerance.

June was Pride Month. An open conversation about gender, acceptance, diversity, and love acquires a special meaning on the eve of Independence Day when we celebrate the independence of our country and freedom of our citizens. In many ways, however, some folks are more independent/free than the others. Is LGBT community independent from intolerance, in the US and around the world? Or, does it still face realities of intolerance and discrimination?

There's more to LGBT issues than meets the eye. Millions of people identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender, or LGBT. Thousands of them around the world are gaining visibility while many still live in fear.

The big picture is best presented in Equality Rising, a 2015 overview of the successes and setbacks of LGBT advocates around the world. We need this worldwide picture in order to put a proper perspective on the state-of-the-art in our own backyard.

It's good enough that same-sex marriage became legal in Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Colombia, Denmark (including Greenland), Finland, France, Iceland, Ireland, Luxembourg the Netherlands (including the Netherlands Caribbean), New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, Spain, South Africa, Sweden, the United States and Uruguay.

It's not too bad to find the same-sex marriage legal at least partially, in certain jurisdictions of Mexico and the UK.

It's bad to see that criminalization of LGBT occurs in 72 countries worldwide.

It's really ugly that being gay/lesbian is punishable with death penalty in 10 countries of Africa and Asia.

And it's beyond nasty that in two presumably civilized countries the so-called "anti-propaganda laws" obstruct any advocacy for LGBT: Lithuania and Russia.

The US Picture

It's good that the US is on the "good" countries list, and that according to Gallup, there exist major shifts in American's attitudes about the morality and legality of gay and lesbian relations in the two decades. Whereas 38% of Americans said gay and lesbian relations were morally acceptable in 2002, that number has risen to 63% today. So the tendency moves to more inclusion . . . but not everything is picture perfect.

It's bad that of an estimated 904,000 LGBT adult immigrants in the US, 30 percent are undocumented and living in dual shadows. Don't they need more understanding?

It's ugly that there exists a network of American extremists who work tirelessly to undercut LGBT people worldwide. They spew poisonous rhetoric and discredited science, misrepresenting American public. Isn't it time to take action?

While looking forward to the 4th of July, we need to remember that the Independence Day has a wide range of meaning, including our independence of bigotry in a free country. With respect to LGBT, Americans perceive that more than one in five Americans are gay and lesbian, far greater than the actual rate as measured on Gallup Daily tracking. Some of the overestimation may reflect media portrayals of creative gay characters on television and/or movies. But this exaggerated perception of numbers is not critical for all-American progress. For all of us to become independent of intolerance we need to conscientiously define American as a freedom-loving, creative, contributing, inclusive personality . . . sexual orientation, ethnic origin, race and such notwithstanding . . . then independence of all Americans from any bigotry and intolerance is yet to come! In June and beyond.
